PRESS RELEASE

On behalf of Jordan Willis, I am issuing this press release in hopes of setting the record straight regarding the tragic death of his three close friends.

Jordan had absolutely nothing to do with their deaths. He does not know the timing or manner of their deaths, nor does he know how or when they exited his house. He had no knowledge that they remained in his backyard or that they needed medical attention. Had he known, he certainly would have called for help. The last time he saw them was when they left his house, and he went to bed.

Prior to being contacted by police, he did not receive any phone calls or text messages from friends or family members of the deceased. Two people came to his house; however, he did not hear them as he sleeps with air buds and a loud fan. One of those people, the wife of one of the deceased, tried to reach him via Facebook messenger, unfortunately, he did not see this message until after the police contacted him. Two of his friends parked their cars on the street and there were no cars parked in his driveway. Jordan did not notice the cars in the street; however, it would not be unusual for his friends to have left their cars there overnight.

When the police arrived, he allowed them into his house, told them all he knew, and voluntarily consented to a search of his home. The police do not suspect any foul play and they are not investigating their deaths as a homicide.

Jordan is unaware of how his friends died. Like the rest of us, Jordan is anxiously awaiting the results of the autopsy and toxicology report. On behalf of Jordan and his family, we wish to express our deepest sympathies to the friends and family members of these young men, and our thoughts and prayers are with them.

Sincerely,
